

Who Are We

The Performance Shagya Registry (PShR) has built a solid foundation that celebrates all achievements with our Shagya and Shagya-bred horses. We recognize both the competitive performers and the ambassadors that represent this great breed. The breeding goal of a purebred Shagya or Shagya-bred horse is to produce a versatile athlete suitable for all levels of competition, while maintaining horses that have a kind and willing attitude. Shagyas originated in the Babolna Stud farm in Hungary. As a primary goal, these horses were bred to be the highest quality for use in warfare by kings, high ranking officers and nobility. The horse had to be extremely ride-able to attain this status. A second stated goal for the Shagya was as a breed improver. In other words, Shagya breed stock was required to be of such a refined quality that crossing with a Shagya would result in breeding-quality offspring that was "better" than either parent. To achieve these two goals, the Hungarian breeders were ruthless in their assessment of Shagya stock. They tested the animals extensively under saddle in the arena, in the field and at war. The responsibility of Performance Shagya Registry is to ensure the continued integrity and legacy of the Shagya and Shagya-bred horses in North America. For us, performance testing is the modern day equivalent of "in the field" and "at war." Performance testing is not a new concept to the members of the PShR. We all strongly believe in the development of a purpose-bred riding animal. We achieve this development through performance riding criteria and by using these criteria as the deciding factors when choosing breeding stock and planning future generations. A registration is only the first step in qualifying as a breed stock in our registry. We license horses to breed after they have achieved a specified level of performance. Most of the major riding disciplines are represented in our performance testing processes. If we don't have the criteria in place for your chosen sport, we invite you to help us develop additional performance standards.

2009 In Review:

PShR is proud to have met many goals by completing:

- 501-c-5 filing,
- Bylaws,
- Breeding Guidelines per the RZBO standards,

- Elected a seven (7) elected board of director members,
- Licensing standards,
- volunteer committees and
- A Registry for purebred and part-bred Shagya horses.
- A website: www.performance-shagya-registry.org/HOME2.html
- A Facebook Page with 49

Severe Combined Immunodeficiency "SCID" Testing

PShR members wanting to test any of their horses for SCID need to contact Linda Rudolphi at wineglassfarm1@yahoo.com for instructions on hair sample submission and a submission form. We are putting together a group mailing to take advantage of a discounted price of $98 rather than the individual test expense of $140. Samples will be submitted and mailed as a group from Rudolphi Veterinary Service. Contact Linda by April 10, 2010, if you are interested in participating. For members in Canada, you may also submit hair samples but need to complete an Equine Import Permit. Test results will be mailed directly to the owner of the horse.

Shagyas - their history and influence on the Sporthorses of today

By Shelley Housh

When I am out with my stallion I am often asked “what is he, some sort of Arabian?”. You notice his refinement and beauty, but his size, substance, and quiet temperament makes him stand out as something other than your typical purebred Arabian. People don’t know what to make of him. When I answer Shagya, I already know the next question - “What is that?”. I hope this article helps to explain what a Shagya is and how they have influenced the warmblood sport horses of today.

The date was 1789 when Empress Maria Theresia decided the quality of the Austro-Hungarian military mounts needed to be improved. She set out the order to breed the ideal cavalry mount. The goal was to keep the positive qualities of the Arabian she valued such as stamina, beauty, and intelligence, but to improve on size and substance in order to carry the cavalry equipment, to improve the temperament and conformation, and add harmonious movement. Desert bred Arabian stallion from Syria were imported to Babolna, the state stud farm in Hungary where Shagyas are still bred to this day. These stallion were bred to local mares from the Hungarian region - mares of Thoroughbred, Lipizyaner, and Oriental types. Stud farms in Romania, Poland, Slovakia, Bulgaria and Austria were also the foundation breeding farms for the Shagya. The names of some of the Arab stallions used in the development of the breed will be familiar to Arab breeders - Koheilan/Kuhailan, O’Bajan, Amurath, Siglavy Bagdady, Mersuch, Gazal, Jussuf and Dahoman.

Stallions who were chosen for the original Shagya breeding program went through extensive performance and progeny testing before they were considered to be used for breeding. At age three and a half young stallions started their performance testing which included dressage training. Later they were sent to regiment cavalry headquarters where they participated in the hunt and a 480 mile endurance trek in 10 days which included sprints. Here they were evaluated on speed, jumping ability, trainability, disposition, and feed efficiency. Mares were raced and driven 5 in hand. Meticulous records were kept on each stallion - their size, characteristics, offspring, breeding performance, versatility, stamina, agility, hardiness and soundness. New stallions were bred to 30 mares a year for 3 years - 10 low quality, 10 average quality, and 10 high grade mares. At the end of the 3 years, all offspring were brought in front of a committee. If all offspring were not of superior quality to the parents, then the entire group was culled and sold to local farmers. Few of the imported stallion were allowed to continue in the breeding program.

In 1978, the breed took the name Shagya after a very influential Arabian stallion named Shagya, bred by the Bani Sauer tribe of Bedouins. He was imported to Babolna in 1836 and can be found in the pedigrees of most Shagyas. Prior to 1978 these horses were known as Arab-bred or Babolna Arabians. Shortly after this the Internationale Shagya-Araber Gesellschaft, or ISG, was formed as the international governing body for the breed.

Besides mounts for the military, Shagyas were bred to improve the breeding stock of the local Hungarian farmers as well as for other warmblood and pony breeds. Today, Shagyas can be found in the pedigrees of most Warmblood breeds - Westphalian, RPSI, Oldenburg, Trakehner, DWB, Holsteiner, German Riding ponies and many others. In the mid 80's, the Shagya stallion Amor was chosen by the Lipizzaner stud farm in Piber, Austria to add refinement to the Lipizzaner breed. Here in the US, a full one third of Trakehner stallions carry Shagya bloodlines, mainly through Lapis, the sire of Burnus and grandsire of Habicht. Lapis was a purebred Yugoslavian Shagya stallion. Habicht has given the world Windfall, Cocktail, and Sixtus. The famous Ramzes was half Shagya through his dam, the Shagya mare Jordi. His influence in the Trakehner breed can be seen through his son Condus, sire of Hilda Gurney's Leonidas. Ramzes also has had a great influence on other breeds, including the Dutch Warmblood through Roemer and the Westphalian through Radetzky and Rembrandt. Gazal VII is often referred to in warm blood pedigrees as Gazal ox, but make no mistake - he is indeed a purebred Shagya. A look at the pedigrees of the 2008 Olympic horses show a high percentage who carry Shagya bloodlines. The 2009 USDF Horse of the Year, Ravel, has multiple Shagya bloodlines through both Ramzes and the Holsteiner stallions Amor, Heinitz, and Loretto. The German Olympic eventer from the 80's, White Girl, was by the very influential and athletic Shagya sire Bajar. Other warm blood jumpers from the Bajar Shagya line are such horses as Bacchus Z, Baldini I, Baldini II, Bricscar, and Boritas. Ahorn N, the German Riding pony who competed at top levels of international jumping was also linebred to Bajar. Askar AA, Milton, Ramiro Z, and the eventer Jagermeister from the New Zealand Olympic team are some of the many other warmbloods who carry Shagya bloodlines and compete at the top levels of their sport. They all seem to prove the local saying in Hungary that "a drop (of Shagya blood) in the bucket is enough".

Ninja PFF (Sarvar x Nadeja ox)
Part-Shagya Arabian dressage gelding.

Although it may seem that all Shagyas are grey, they also come in bay, chestnut, and black. The breed standard recommends a height of 15.1-16.1 with a cannon not less than 18 cm, but horses can be found at either end of the spectrum. In spite of a relatively high percentage of Arabian blood, they should be clearly different from that breed in type, size, substance and bone. The breeding goal is a substantial Arab bred horse suitable for everybody as an elegant riding and carriage horse. The Shagya should be beautiful and harmonious with an expressive head, well formed neck, good topline, long croup, well carried tail, and strong, dry, correct legs. Free, springy, elastic, ground consuming, and correct action in all three gaits is very important. The breeding goal is for an elegant, yet substantial Arab bred riding and carriage horse. Purebred Arabians may be approved for Shagya breeding, usually added into the breed every fourth generation, and are used to maintain the positive Arab qualities. However for a horse to be considered a purebred Shagya, no more than 9 out of 16 purebred Arabians are allowed in the fourth generation.

Today there are fewer than 2000 Shagyas worldwide and less than 200 approved breeding animal here in the US. Shagyas were brought to the US after WWII under the direction of General Patton as prizes of war and also imported by some private breeders over the years, but it was not until the mid 80's that active breeding of the Shagyas began under the guidance of ISG. In North America, all Shagyas must be approved for breeding and stallions are now being required to pass performance requirements. ISG sanctioned breeding approval inspections are usually held every 2-3 years and ISG judges from Europe are invited to participate. Although Shagyas in Europe are known to be successful riding and driving horses, often competing and winning against warmbloods in open competition, they are just now beginning to get noticed here in North America

Shagyas excel in all disciplines including eventing, dressage, driving, jumping, and endurance, and are fabulous family mounts. The 2006 WEG endurance champion was a Babolna bred Shagya named Hungares. Last year the AHA Half-Arabian National Competitive Trail reserve champion was a half-Arabian gelding by a Shagya stallion. In the US, there are a number of Shagyas and half-Shagyas competing in eventing and dressage, up to Prix St George level. In Europe, Shagyas consistently and successfully compete against warmbloods in open competition.

For over 200 years this hardy, willing breed has endured. They have consistently been bred for genetic predictability though selective line breeding for generations. Shagyas - Pride through Performance! NOTE: This article was written by Shelley Housh and published in Warmbloods Today Magazine. See www.warmbloodstoday.com for more information.

Silver Nike SH (Sterling Silver AF x Nicolatina Star AF)
2 yr old grey Shagya filly
$8000

Nike is an elegant filly, big boned, with gorgeous movement. She is uphill, very light on the fore and has wonderful extension in her trot. She will excel in dressage or make a wonderful broodmare. She has no Arabians in her 4th generation. She is friendly, easy to handle and willing. I expect her to mature 15.3h.

Ramius SH (Sterling Silver AF x Rondine xx)
2 yr old grey Anglo-Shagya gelding
$6500

Ramius is a very laid back but athletic gelding with an enduring personality. He has a beautiful, powerful trot with nice extension. His TB dam was an eventer and has 3 Triple Crown champions in her pedigree. He is well suited for eventing, jumping or dressage. He will mature 16+h.

Highland Silver SH (Sterling Silver AF x Hologram KWPN)
2 yr old dark grey Shagya-KWPN filly
$5000

Heidi is a large filly with an extremely friendly personality, definitely an Alpha mare. Her dam is a daughter of the USDF Hall of Fame dressage stallion *Roemer. Heidi is bred for performance and has a trot with great extension and suspension. She will mature 16.1+h.

In Utero:

foal by Sterling Silver AF x Dawinnah ox
This Shagya-Arabian foal will be a 3/4 sibling to the deceased colt Silverwood SH. Foal is due in mid-April. Dawinnah, by SW Dawid, is a pure Polish Arabian from proven racing stock. She has amazing suspension and elasticity in her trot that she passes on to her offspring. 2 of her daughters have been approved by the ATA with very high scores and her TB colt was called "magnificent" by Major General Jonathon Burton. Call for price.
